

Doing

Section 5 Choreography

Find out more at bit.ly/AcademyLearningArchitecture

Doing

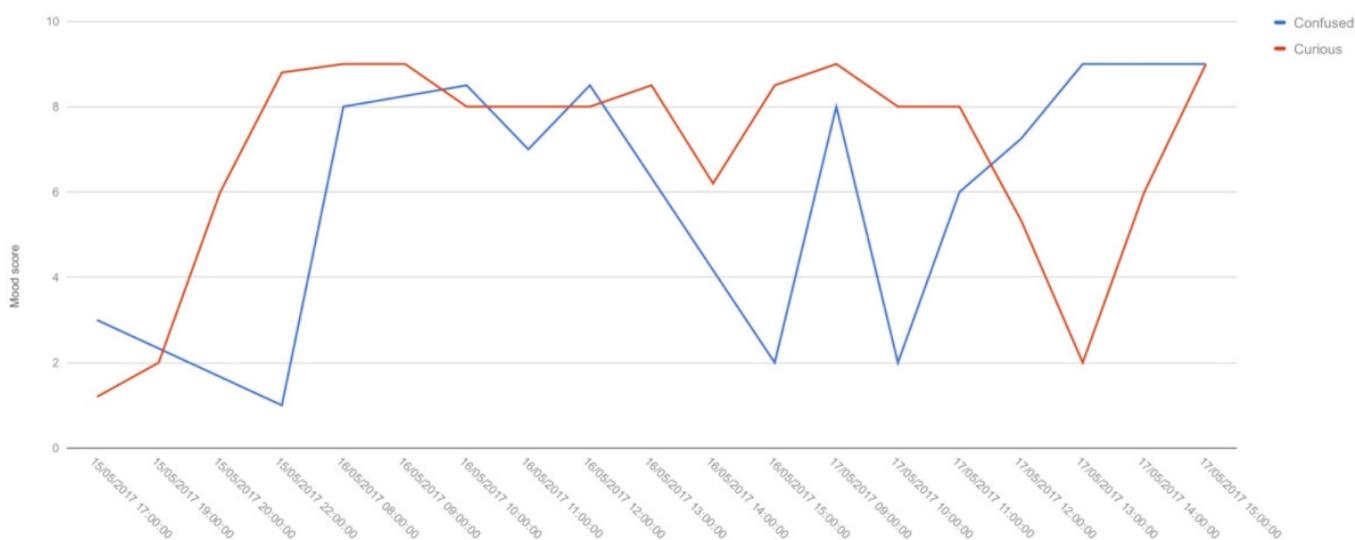

This page illustrates how to 'do' the core concept of this section. We've shown where each tool of the Doing section can provide more information as you work through your Scaffolding social learning design.

Taking the temperature

What time commitment and attention are you asking of your learners? Does it vary across the programme? What can you change to make sure your programme's rhythm changes? These are questions related to energy and are wholly within your control. What's more elusive is understanding learner's emotional state. Frustration and confusion can have their uses, but they need to be recognised and managed in order to keep learners on track. Taking the temperature helps you make sure learners feel how they should be feeling in any given moment of a programme.

In order to accurately map emotions, include regular temperature checks as part of your programme. This will help you understand how your community reacts to certain activities and overall how they are feeling. Gauging emotional state is a quick assessment method that can help you and your team decide if and how to adapt your programme in delivery.

Confused, Curious, Excited, tired and Trusting

Materials, Actions Needed	Learner Journey
Pre-programme conversation with manager	I have been talking to my manager about leadership development, and I received an email from her, inviting me to be on the programme. She sent me a personal email that reference our previous conversations, and clearly identified the commitment and effort I would have to put into the course. I was able to read the personal story of somebody who had completed this programme before, where they identified what was easy, and what they found difficult. I was given the option to work with the organisation to write up my own contract to be part of this program... I started week four by submitting my story called 'the leader I want to be', which consisted of a letter to my future self, and a two-minute video that I recorded on my phone. After I submitted my story, my friend asked me to respind to theirs, so I viewed it, and recorded my own video response et cetera
Personal email from manager
Course length and commitment
Testimonial from previous participant
Contract template
Week 4 theme and content:Aspirational Leadership
Example of video submission
Activity Instructions:Submit a video
Community Management interactions have built trust and safe space
Etc

Use your list to begin building a Running Order. Include emotion and energy as descriptors in the expectations if you choose to.

Make time to review the Choreography checklist with a colleague to make sure you have everything covered

Roles	Day 1	Day 2	Day 3	Day 4	Day 5	Week 1 Expectations
Course Facilitation		Welcome email sent including login information (or information necessary to joining the social space)	Present in community and via email, to post comments, respond to questions, set tone			Learners have been introduced to the programme context and have had opportunity to respond with questions or comments
Learner	Joins social space?	Receives welcome email and registers for the course. joins social space?	Introduce themselves, their expectations. Responds to the community name.			Learners will have joined the online community, introduced themselves and contributed to naming the community.
Community Management		A welcome video or narrative introduces learner to the community group, outlining purpose and next steps, eg: create profile, make an introduction contribution to name of community	Responds to introductions and engages learners	Responds to introductions and engages learners	Responds to introductions and engages learners	Community managers will have introduced themselves, responded to learners' introductions and released the content for week 2.
Storytelling		Introduction of role/ function, setting expectations	Present in community in observing, note taking mode	Present in community in observing, note taking mode	Present in community in observing, note taking mode	Storytellers will have introduced themselves and their role.

Choreography Checklist

Use this checklist as a structured reflection tool when considering the choreography of your Scaffolded Social Learning opportunity.

- Do you have the right tone of voice and stance in the early communication
- How have you agreed on engagement with the learner, and with the community?
Is it explicit?
- What tone is appropriate for your programme?
- Have you made clear transitions from 'formal' spaces to 'social' ones: are you actively moving the learning between the two?
- Have you made permission clear throughout?
- Have you run through the programme, start to end, to map the energy, to ensure learners have time to breathe?
- Have you included a method for regularly checking the temperature?